FOR IISHA

Your November newsletter is ready to send.

We took your newsletter, kept your voice and your message, and turned it into a branded email your clients will want to open. This guide walks you through sending it from Square yourself, about 30 minutes the first time and much faster after that.

The finished newsletter

Online at icbeautyinyou.com/newsletter. Send that link anywhere: text, TikTok, Instagram.

Square image pack

Six designed images that make the email look like the version above inside Square's simpler editor.

This guide

Click by click: setup, the block-by-block build, your copy to paste, and scheduling.

Part 1 · Before you send

1 Turn on Square Marketing

In your Square Dashboard, go to `Customers` → `Marketing`. Email campaigns need a Square Marketing subscription. The price depends on how many subscribed contacts you have. Recent listings show it starting around $15 a month for up to 500 contacts, with a free trial. Square shows the exact price before you subscribe.

2 Check your client list (it's mostly done already)

Because your clients pay you through Square, they're already saved under `Customers` → `Customer directory`. Square saves a client's email when they take an emailed receipt or book through Square Appointments, so most of your list is ready to go. Open a few profiles to spot-check. If someone paid by card without a receipt and has no email, click their profile and add it. Only clients you've never run through Square need `Import/Export` → `Import customers`.

Good to know: when you choose your audience in Part 3, Square shows how many people will get the email. If that number is far below your client count, some profiles are missing emails. Square never emails anyone who opted out, and every email includes an unsubscribe link. Grow your list for free: offer an emailed receipt at checkout, and every new client lands on your newsletter list automatically.

Part 2 · Build the email in Square

1 Start a new campaign

Go to `Customers` → `Marketing` → `Campaigns`, click `Create campaign`, choose `Email` and click `Next`. Pick your location and the objective for sharing news.

2 Set the look

Click `Design`. Pick the simplest template, set the button color to plum #6E3F86 and delete the sample blocks.

3 Add the blocks in this order

Drag in each block below. Upload the images from the Square image pack folder (if Square asks for an image description, use the words in the file name), and paste each text block from the copy sheet on the next page.

BLOCK 13 · TEXT
You may want to add this if you spend most of your time indoors, get limited sunshine, or have had low vitamin D levels before.

Why it matters for us: melanin reduces how much vitamin D our skin makes from sunlight. Add aging, indoor lifestyles and shorter winter days, and keeping healthy levels gets harder, especially this time of year.

Vitamin D supports bone health, muscle function, immune health and normal hair follicle growth.

My favorite: DAK1K2 (vitamins D3, A, K1 and K2) from Optimal Health Systems.

Part 3 · Choose who gets it, then schedule it

1. Pick your audience
   Click `Select Audience` and choose `All Customers`. To send only to certain clients, choose `Custom` instead.

2. Send yourself a test first
   Check it on your own phone before your clients see it. If Square shows a test-email option, use it. If not, send this exact campaign to a `Custom` audience of just yourself, then build the real send.

3. Review, then schedule
   Click `Review Campaign`, look everything over, then choose `Schedule` and pick a date and time. A weekday morning around 10 AM tends to get the most opens. `Send Now` works too.

4. Optional: a reminder for anyone who didn't open
   On the review screen, you can turn on a reminder email. Square resends it five days later to anyone who hasn't opened it. This is off by default, and once the campaign goes out you can't turn the reminder off.

Part 4 · Let Square send things automatically

Every newsletter is a one-time send, but you can schedule each issue ahead of time so it goes out on its own. For emails that should go out without you thinking about them, Square also offers ongoing automated campaigns when you create a campaign, like a welcome email for every new client added to your directory. A warm welcome note that links to your discovery call is a great first one.

> Your new front door: every "Book" button on your website now opens your Jotform discovery-call form, right on icbeautyinyou.com/book. A second tab, "Book a service," shows your Square booking for returning clients. Use icbeautyinyou.com/start as your TikTok link: it opens the same form inside your website, so people see your brand, your story and your steps first. The newsletter's booking buttons go straight to your discovery-call form too.

Your question: keep Jotform, or cancel it?

Our advice: keep Jotform. Your intake forms are working, you can build and change them yourself in minutes, and Jotform handles what you need: questions, signatures, your deposit notice and your intro video. There's nothing on the website that would do it better right now, so we built the website around your forms instead of replacing them.

KEEP

- Jotform: your discovery-call form and your three pathway intakes. Answers stay in one place.
- Square: payments, deposit invoices, appointments and now your newsletter.
- Your website: it now frames your Jotform on-brand at /book, and it replaces your link page and online store.

SAFE TO CANCEL, IF YOU PAY FOR THEM

- Stan Store: every product now sells on your website.
- Linktree (paid plan): icbeautyinyou.com/links does the same job on your own domain.
- Square Online website plan: your domain now points to the new site. Keep your Square account itself, since you still need it for payments, appointments and marketing.

Free or paid Jotform? Both can do what you need. Videos work on the free plan: upload your intake video to YouTube as "Unlisted," then add Jotform's YouTube widget to the top of each form and paste the link. Payment links are just text with a link, which works on any plan. Jotform's built-in payment fields work on the free plan too, but only for a small number of payments each month. The free plan allows 5 forms and 100 submissions a month and shows "Powered by Jotform." Keeping a paid plan is a good call if you want more forms or room to grow, or want your own branding with no Jotform logo. Plans start around $34 a month billed yearly (check jotform.com/pricing). Your intakes ask about health, so share answers only with people who need them.

Later on: once your member portal with client logins is live, intake answers could flow straight into each client's file. We'll look at it together then. Until that day, Jotform is the right tool.

Rather we handle it?

Just say the word. We'll set up Square Marketing, build this newsletter in Square, test it and schedule it for you.
